

What Do You Want To Be When You Grow Up?

A Snake Handler, an Astronaut, a Stunt Man, or maybe even a World Famous Detective.

It's a good thing that kids have parents who can help steer them in a better direction regarding their future.

And parents across the country are choosing to send their children to Christendom College to help them be the best person, and Catholic, that they can be when they grow up.

These parents have been helping their children grow in the Faith and in virtue for the past 18 years, and they don't want it all to stop once their children go off to college. They want their children to go to a college where basic Catholic family values are encouraged and supported. They want a college where their children will not only have a great Theology teacher, but, great History, Philosophy, Political Science, English, and Classics teachers, all faithful to the Magisterium of the Roman Catholic Church.

They want their children to be surrounded by other great Catholic students who are trying to be something different than their peers. They want them to be able to sing the Salve Regina with the entire student body, take in the heavenly smells of incense during a traditionally celebrated Mass, celebrate the many liturgical feasts of the year with great ceremony and festivity, and embrace the entire Catholic culture of Christendom.

In short, they want their children to be Saints when they grow up. Join them on their heavenly journey.
